An Evening of Blues and Barbecue Benefitting The Rose Eisendrath House At the Carl Hayden Campus for Sustainability

About the Eisendrath House

Located adjacent to the Papago-Saguaro National Monument is the historic Eisendrath House. This property has been acquired by the City of Tempe and added to Papago Park. The pueblo revival structure was designed and constructed of concrete, adobe and wood by local architect/master builder Robert Evans in 1930. Rose Eisendrath purchased the property and commissioned the house after being refused accommodation at a Valley resort due to her Jewish ethnicity.

After Mrs. Eisendrath's death, a succession of owners and tenants lived in the home. Although some modifications were made over time and some of the adobe walls have deteriorated due to water penetration, the structure retains a high degree of integrity and is listed on the Tempe Historic Property Register. Restoration will allow the house and property to serve the public, not only as a reminder of Tempe's past, but as a touchstone for its future as a sustainable, diverse community.

Carl Hayden, Tempe native, Maricopa County Sheriff, State Legislator, and Arizona's longest-serving U.S. Congressman and Senator, will be honored by interactive exhibits on water conservation and recognized for his vital role in the Central Arizona Project.

Offices for the City of Tempe's Water Conservation Program will be located in the home. Citizens and visitors will be able to obtain information on water conservation and other sustainable practices.

The rehabilitation is being undertaken by the Tempe Historic Preservation Foundation and the Rio Salado Foundation. The mission of the Rio Salado Foundation is to preserve the history and natural beauty of Papago Park and the Rio Salado and to ensure the area's success as a major cultural, recreational and urban destination through the creation of public-private partnerships.
